Art Unit: 1612

Claims 1-7 and 101-18 are presented for examination.

The Final rejection of July 26, 2007 is hereby withdrawn.

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-7 and 10-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The instant specification fails to provide an enabling disclosure in using chlorite in combination with a peroxy compound without degrading chlorite into chlorine dioxide and forming a stable composition during the storage at room temperature.

The factors to be considered whether a disclosure meets the enablement requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, have been described in re Wands, 8 USPQ2d 1400 (Fed. Cir.1988). Among these factors are:

1) The nature of the invention:

The claims are drawn to an antimicrobial composition of a chlorite compound in combination with a peroxy compound.

2) The state of the prior art:

The prior art teaches against the preparation of a composition that remains intact without degrading the chlorite compound into chlorine dioxide. See Berger (US 4,574,084), column4, lines 23-33, column 2, lines 24-29.

3) The relative skill of those in the art:

The relative skill of those in the art is high.

4) The predictability or unpredictability of the art:

The unpredictability of pharmaceutical and chemical art is high.

5) The breadth of the claims:

The claims are very broad and encompass a composition of a chlorite compound and a peroxy compound.

6) The amount of direction or guidance provided:

Applicant's specification provides fails to provide guidance in preparing an antimicrobial composition by combining a chlorite compound with a peroxy compound without degrading into chlorine dioxide.

7) The presence and absence of working examples:

The examples in applicant's specification are drawn to the combination of sodium chlorite and hydrogen peroxide, without demonstrating the lack of degradation of chlorite to chlorine dioxide.

8) The quantity of experimentation necessary;

Since compound structure and activity for such pharmaceutical use must be determined from case to case by painstaking experimental study, one of ordinary skill in the art would be burdened with undue experimentation to determine all peroxy compounds in combination with all chlorite compounds which can form a stable composition without degradation of chlorite to chlorine.
